School-based apprentices – Notification of days worked

School-based apprentices are required to work a minimum 50 days (375 hours) per 12 months in their school-based apprenticeship from date of commencement (that is, a minimum of 7.5 hours per week averaged over each 3 month period). Electrotechnology school-based apprentices are required to work a minimum of 80 days (600 hours) per 12 months.

The Queensland Curriculum and Assessment Authority (QCAA) will allocate appropriate points on the school-based apprentice's Queensland Certificate of Education (QCE), including points for days worked in the school-based apprenticeship. It is therefore important that the Department of Trade, Employment and Training (DTET) has an accurate record of the number of days a school-based apprentice has worked to enable the transfer of accurate data to the QCAA.

If the number of days a school-based apprentice has worked is different from the minimum stated above, they need to notify DTET of the actual days worked. This form can be used for this purpose.

Important note: If an apprentice claims to have worked more than the minimum days required in the school-based apprenticeship, they will need to provide proof of the actual number of days worked – for example, a copy of pay records or a statutory declaration signed by the employer.

Training organisations delivering to school-based apprentices in the Senior Phase of Learning are required to bank the apprentice's vocational education and training achievements direct with QCAA or with DTET.
