

Issue 5: December 2014

Peter Twine and Damien modelling the new polo shirts for the volunteer JPs in the 'JPs in the Community' program.

Dear colleagues,

As another very busy year moves to a close, I would like to thank everyone for their time and commitment to the important community role of either a Justice of the Peace or Commissioner for Declarations.

JP Branch is excited to provide the new 'JPs in the Community' volunteer polo shirts and 'JPs in the Community' signing site posters as part of JP Branch's corporate rebranding being rolled out across Queensland.

On behalf of the entire staff of JP Branch, have a very merry Christmas and enjoyable festive season.

I hope you enjoy this edition of the JP Bulletin and the new "Five minutes with..." feature where I will interview some important persons across government who have strong connections with our roles, or persons who have an interesting story as a Justice of the Peace or Commissioner for Declarations. The very first person to be interviewed is Mr Kevin Martin, the recently appointed Public Guardian for Queensland.

Warm regards,

Damien Mealey and staff
Registrar and Manager
Justices of the Peace Branch
Department of Justice and Attorney-General

Five minutes with...Kevin Martin

In line with recommendations resulting from the Queensland Child Protection Commission of Inquiry¹, in July 2014 the functions of the Adult Guardian were combined with those of the Commission for Children, Young People and Child Guardian. The role of the Adult Guardian was abolished and the new role of the Public Guardian was established.

Could you explain the main difference between your former role as the Adult Guardian and your recent appointment as the first Public Guardian for the State of Queensland?

The Office of the Adult Guardian provided services to vulnerable adults for whom we had been appointed by QCAT - particularly to adults with issues of capacity. We also operated an extensive Community Visitor Scheme for those individuals as well as investigations, advice, etc. Those functions have now been added to the Community Visitor program to visit children in the Child Protection System (particularly vulnerable children) as well as the responsibility to provide Legal Advocacy Services to those children to ensure that their voice will be heard in relation to all decisions that impact upon them. Our vision remains to protect the rights and interests of vulnerable Queenslanders whether children or adults.

Why is it important for members of our community to have a current Enduring Power of Attorney (EPOA) or an Advance Health Directive (AHD)?

EPOAs and AHDs empower an adult who possesses the necessary capacity to make decisions about who can make decisions on their behalf when they no longer possess the necessary capacity to decide matters for themselves. This power extends to personal matters (accommodation, contact with others, etc.), financial and health care issues. Such empowerment can be subject to terms and conditions as determined by the individual. This supersedes the statutory scheme put in place to regulate the affairs of individuals who lose capacity without making the necessary advance preparations.

¹ Owing to a widespread perception that the current child protection system in Queensland was failing vulnerable children and their families, the Queensland Government established the Queensland Child Protection Commission of Inquiry on 1 July 2012, led by the Honourable Tim Carmody, QC. The final reports were presented on 1 July 2013.

JP Bulletin December 2014

How do you see the role of a Justice of the Peace or Commissioner for Declarations assisting with the witnessing of EPOAs or AHDs?

Justices of the Peace and Commissioners for Declaration represent the general community through their role in witnessing the completion of enduring instruments. It is part of their obligation as witness to express an opinion (on behalf of society) whether the person completing the enduring instrument appears to have the necessary capacity to do so. Once appropriately completed, the enduring instrument is presumed at law to have been completed by an individual with capacity, as certified by the witness, until the contrary is established at law.

Could you give an update on the proposal or concept of actually having a register for EPOAs or AHDs in the future, or is it something that really isn't required?

The establishment of a register of enduring instruments is a position supported in principle by major stakeholders who interact with the operation of enduring instruments (e.g. banking institutions, financial services, health providers, guardians and administrators, legal etc.). Governments across Australia are receiving submissions on the benefits and on how to best implement a register.

Christmas Message from the Attorney-General

At the end of a very hectic year for our Department, it is a good time to reflect on the important contribution to the community made by JPs and C.decs right around our great State.

There are now 199 community sites located across the State that are operated by over 2,925 volunteers, equating to 99,801 hours of JP services being delivered to the community over the last financial year from these sites alone.

It is important for the Queensland community to have easy access to competent, well-trained JPs and C.decs who they can have confidence in. You all have provided that. Continued professional development is a vital element in achieving this outcome and I have personally seen the outstanding commitment to this.

I was honoured to host two professional development forums and attend a total of 30 local forums across various parts of the State over the past 12 months. These forums have been particularly well attended and the speakers involved have been both engaging and enlightening.

The value and importance that the Queensland Government places on the contribution of JPs is reflected by our election commitment of $3.5 million over four years to:

- Pilot the use of JPs in dealing with Queensland Civil and Administrative Tribunal (QCAT) matters up to a value of $5,000;
- Outsource the delivery of JP training programs to suitably qualified entities within the community; and
- Refocus the JP Branch on providing greater compliance and support.

The Government's commitment to pilot the use of Justices of the Peace in QCAT recognises and expands the role of JPs in delivering justice services.

JP Bulletin December 2014

This has been tested by the recruitment and establishment of a pool of JPs and legal practitioners to hear certain minor civil disputes valued at less than $5,000. This pool represents fully our diverse community and the important role of legal practitioners and JPs in delivering justice services in Queensland. Each panel consists of a JP and a legally-qualified JP, who are each paid $100 per day. Applicants undertook a rigorous training course, provided for free by QCAT, to enable them to understand, appreciate and manage the types of issues they are presiding over.

The pilot has been running for more than a year now at five sites - Ipswich, Brisbane, Maroochydore, Southport and Townsville – with more than 4,700 matters having been heard by a JP Panel.

It is reassuring that the feedback received by QCAT from participating JPs has been consistently positive and constructive.

The number of adjournments, appeals and complaints arising from JP panels has been low, with only 9% of matters adjourned, 2% of matters appealed and 0.8% of matters drawing a complaint. It has resulted in fantastic reductions in wait times for hearings, from six weeks to just over three weeks.

The Department of the Premier and Cabinet was responsible for evaluating the pilot program, and the trial will remain ongoing while I review the reports and make a decision on its continuation or expansion.

The Government's commitment to re-focusing the JP Branch on providing greater compliance and support is about improving the governance and operation of Queensland's JP system and increasing the support and professional development provided to JPs.

It is also worth noting that DJAG launched a new website in the middle of this year, designed specifically for mobile phones. The website is available at: www.justice.qld.gov.au/jpapp.

As a JP or C.dec, you can use the website to update your details and register for professional development events. It also allows members of the public to find a JP or C.dec, or to find information about how to become one.

JP Bulletin December 2014

Thank you for what you do and for the role that you play in our justice system in Queensland. I often say that without the service of our JPs and C.decs, our justice system would grind to a halt.

I wish you all a very happy and safe Christmas, and look forward to your valued contributions again in the New Year.

The Honourable Jarrod Bleijie

Member for Kawana, Attorney-General and Minister for Justice

JP Advisory Council Update

The JP Advisory Council met in September and will reconvene in the New Year on a date yet to be advised. If you have anything you would like to put before the Council please forward your submission to jpsinthecommunity@justice.qld.gov.au.

The main points discussed at the last JP advisory council meeting were:

- The new Justices of the Peace Branch Team Leaders were introduced to the Advisory Council.
- A discussion about changes to include in the new edition of the JP Handbook (still in drafting stage).
- Methods of recognition for the participants in the JPs in the Community program.
- Re-design of the JPs in the Community polo shirts.

If you would like further information about the above, please contact the Justices of the Peace Branch via phone 1300 301 147 or email JPsinthecommunity@justice.qld.gov.au.

Alerts and Information

Christmas Closures

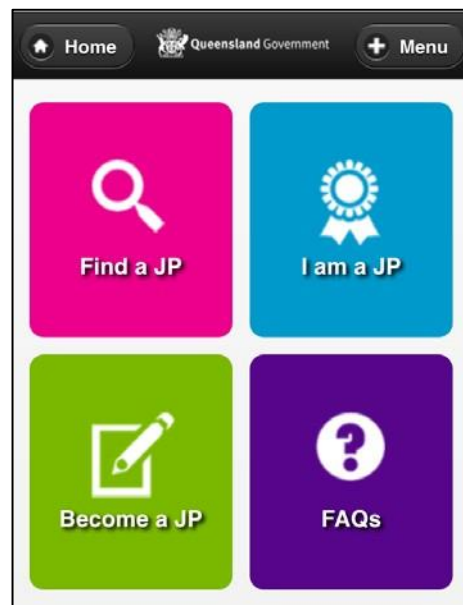

JP Branch will be closed from Thursday 25 December 2014, recommencing services on Monday 5 January 2015. Signing sites across Queensland may have longer closures than these dates during the festive season so check with your local signing site for up-to-date information on their prospective closures.

JP App

As many of you are already aware, JP Branch has recently released its own JP App. By using the JP App, you can access valuable information on-the-go including:

- business and after hours JP locations
- a place to update your details
- how to register for workshops
- the JP and C.dec handbooks
- technical bulletins
- FAQs.

To access this great resource, just visit www.justice.qld.gov.au/jpapp on your smart phone, tablet or other mobile device. From there you can then pin or add the app to your home screen for easy access later.

Photos of children – Statutory Declarations

Witnessing a statutory declaration for photos of children being sent to a prison via mail

One of our JPs has asked to clarify our role when witnessing a statutory declaration for family members of a person in prison, if the family member wishes to send pictures of their children in the mail to the prisoner. In order for a photo of a child to be submitted, a statutory declaration must be completed for each child in the picture. The procedure for witnessing a statutory declaration has 14 steps which are listed in both the JP and C.dec handbooks within chapter 2.

While it is not our role to give advice to persons seeking the service of a JP, the Queensland Corrective Services has asked that the statutory declaration should contain the following information:

- the person sending the photos should state in their statutory declaration that they are the parent/legal guardian of the child/children depicted in the photographs; and
- they need to state that the child/children depicted have a family relationship with the prisoner recipient of the photographs; and
- the person sending the photos should give written consent in their statutory declaration for the photographs to be given to the prisoner recipient and for the prisoner to possess the photos.

If the statutory declaration does not contain the above information, the JP should still witness the statutory declaration as per the JP guidelines in the Handbook. The JP can inform the client that the receiving agency (prison) may refuse the statutory declaration. The JP or C.dec should make appropriate notes in their log book for future reference if required.

Community Engagement

In 2014, we kicked off with our first professional development workshop in March and to date in excess of 100 workshops have been offered and delivered to over 4,000 JPs and C.decs across Queensland.

Of these, over two thousand JPs and C.decs attended Seminars hosted by State Members of Parliament. These were also an opportunity for long service awards acknowledging 25, 40, 50 or 60 years of long service to be presented. For the full list of award recipients (post 1 August 2014) please refer to the 'Acknowledgement of long service awards' article.

The JP Branch is excited to start the New Year with a range of workshops. 2015 will also see the JPs in the Community signing sites stand out and be recognised with the new corporate branded polo shirts and posters.

Keep an eye on our website in late January to see all our prospective dates for 2015, where you can register your interest for different workshops near you.

News from FNQ

On Monday 22 September, The Honourable Chief Justice Tim Carmody took time out of his busy schedule to meet with some of the local JPs who volunteer at our signing sites in Townsville. His Honour acknowledged the great work and support the JP community gives to the courts by stating "They're at the forefront of access to justice....there are many people who need to have something witnessed or some (questions) about where to go. I thank them for their sterling work." It was a very sincere and genuine message of appreciation from His Honour. Each and every one of you should indeed feel proud of the role and service you provide to the Queensland community.

Australia Fair – Site Relaunch

On Wednesday 19 November 2014, the JPs in the Community signing site at Australia Fair celebrated their new permanent location within the Australia Fair Shopping Centre at Southport.

The Honourable Jarrod Bleijie MP, Attorney-General and Minister for Justice, joined the local JP volunteers and members of the public for the official opening, which included a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Speakers on the day included the Attorney-General, Lisa Shaw (Team Leader from JP Branch), and Malcolm Miller representing Centre Management at Australia Fair.

The event celebrated the new location and the greater privacy it offers clients seeking JP services. This site is also one of the first JPs in the Community signing sites to display the new corporate identity of JP Branch.

JP Branch Mentoring Program

The JP Branch Mentoring Program is now into its sixth year of operation and provides a formal avenue to support both newly appointed JPs and C.decs, or for those simply want a refresher, it provides an opportunity to work with experienced JPs and C.decs to further develop their skills and knowledge.

94% of participants rated these workshops as 'very good' or 'good'. 53% of participants indicated that following attending these workshops their knowledge had 'greatly improved' and 40% of participants rated attending these workshops as 'slightly improving' their knowledge base. Comments from participants about the session included 'I had previous knowledge of the subject so it was a good, quick refresher' and 'session flowed well'.

Below are a few photos from our most recent session.

We are currently reviewing the mentoring program to enhance its effectiveness to meet the needs of both mentees and mentors and would welcome your feedback. Please contact Craig Moffat, Client Services Officer on 07 3013 5458 to provide your feedback.

We will be planning more workshops throughout next year, so keep an eye on our website in early January for our 2015 dates.

JPs in the Community site recruitment

All JPs in the Community sites welcome expressions of interest from prospective volunteers.

We critically need support at the following existing and prospective sites:

- Beaudesert Queensland Government Customer Centre
- Caboolture Courthouse
- Caboolture Library (opened 21 November 2014)
- Central Highlands Marketplace, Emerald (proposed location)
- Family Court, Brisbane CBD
- Garden City, Mt Gravatt
- Maleny Neighbourhood Centre
- Pomona Courthouse
- Rockhampton Courthouse
- State Library of Queensland, Brisbane
- The Village Shopping Centre, Upper Mt Gravatt (proposed location)
- Withcott (opened 25 November 2014)

For further information about these sites please visit our website. To express your interest in volunteering contact the Community Engagement Team via email at jpsinthecommunity@justice.qld.gov.au.

Introducing new staff:

Each edition of the JP Bulletin introduces a new member of staff that has joined our team.

Rae Plush

Rae Plush's 20 years of extensive experience in the community services sector attest to her commitment to the principles of primary health care, volunteering and social justice. Rae's current role as the Community Engagement Officer follows her previous work with Volunteering SA&NT and, prior to that, five years as Regional Manager, Volunteer Services with Children, Youth and Women's Health Service in South Australia. Over the years, Rae has presented papers linked to volunteering at national and local conferences and volunteered in local, state and national forums including for the Child Protection Society in Zimbabwe. An enthusiastic supporter of many associations, she is currently a member of the Board of the Australasian Association for Managers of Volunteers.

JP Under the Magnifying Glass

Profile - Jim Meakins JP (Qual) and Site Co-ordinator JPs in the Community Program, Caloundra Magistrates Court

Can you tell us a bit about your history and how you became a JP?

On 24 April 1986, I was appointed a Justice of the Peace in South Australia (SA). At that time I was also a Special Constable for SA because of the position I held with the SA Department of Corrective Services. I am often asked what training was provided in the 1980s for a JP in SA; the answer is none at all! Newly appointed JPs were provided with a small booklet which contained some very basic guidelines.

On transferring to Queensland and graduating from the then Queensland Government Executive Management Development Program I was appointed to the position of Deputy Superintendent of the Queensland Prison Service Security and Investigations section, although my role was largely that of a policy advisor with an investigative function.

In January 1990, I took up a position as Operations Manager for the newly formed Corrections Corporation of Australia. I spent a total of eight years with this company, the last four as General Manager, before moving to Australasian Correctional Management. Health concerns made me reassess my lifestyle and I made the decision to retire from the workforce at age 55.

In 2001, I joined Brisbane Legacy as a volunteer and became heavily involved with assisting the families and widows of deceased servicemen. It soon became apparent that these often needed the services of a JP and many simply were unable to locate a JP in a timely manner. This need inspired me to enroll in a JP (Qual) course being conducted at the Yeerongpilly Tafe. I managed to pass the examination and on 29 August 2011, I was appointed as a JP (Qual). My wife and I subsequently retired to Caloundra in 2003, where I continued my volunteer function with Sunshine Coast Legacy.

How have you been involved in the JPs in the Community program?

In early January 2007, JP Branch invited a number of JPs to attend a meeting at the Caloundra Magistrates Court for the purpose of establishing a JP signing facility at the Courthouse. I was nominated by one of the foundation members for the co-ordinator role and I have remained in that position. Of the group of 16 JPs who attended the first two meetings to establish the Caloundra Magistrates Court program site, I am very proud to say that 9 still volunteer at the site on a regular basis.

My role as co-ordinator includes being a resource person, ensuring the team members are kept up to date on any changes that affect our role as JPs, maintaining site supplies and ensuring that the roster is flexible and takes into account the individual requirements of the team. I was fortunate to have one of my sons living at home when I took on the role and he set up a basic excel spreadsheet roster which I prepare a month in advance.

What do you find challenging about being a JP and how do you handle these challenges?

We have all helped a variety of clients with diverse needs. We also have our share of unusual documents such as the Irish passport application form and the United States family passport application with a supporting letter permitting a Queensland JP to witness the document.

Having resources, including the JP Handbook, on hand provides significant support for the JPs particularly if clients question the duty JP's decision to decline to witness a document or to refer the document to a magistrate as in the case of certain search warrants. We also have our white board on which we record the telephone numbers for agencies with unusual documents. The most important number, of course, is that of JP Branch.

I would like to also emphasise the importance of the invaluable experience ascertained through volunteering in the 'JPs in the Community' program. Applying my skills as a JP in a community-based setting has increased my confidence in my own abilities and offered me a chance to connect with my local community.

Acknowledgement of Long Service Awards

JP Branch wishes to proudly acknowledge the following Justices of the Peace and Commissioners for Declarations for their dedicated service to the community.

Since 1 August 2014, the following have nominated and been presented with their Long Service Award certificates and, where possible, at various JP seminars or events by their local Member of Parliament and the Honourable Jarrod Bleijie MP, Attorney-General and Minister for Justice.
