

Emergency animal diseases

Emergency animal diseases (EADs) like foot-and-mouth disease (FMD), African swine fever (ASF) and lumpy skin disease (LSD) have the potential to devastate Queensland's livestock industries. These diseases are not in Australia... let's keep it that way!

Are you prepared?

LOOK

for and know the signs of emergency animal diseases such as FMD, LSD or ASF.

Visit biosecurity.qld.gov.au for information on emergency animal diseases that may threaten your livestock.

REPORT

suspected cases of emergency animal disease to your veterinarian and the Emergency Animal Disease Watch Hotline on 1800 675 888 immediately.

PROTECT

your animals and your livelihood.

Have a biosecurity management plan in place and ensure it is being followed by everyone who visits your property.

Visit farmbiosecurity.com.au

Ensure you are a registered biosecurity entity. Registration helps to quickly locate animals and contact livestock owners in the event of an EAD in Queensland.

Visit qld.gov.au/BiosecurityRegistration

Stay connected with us:

☎ 13 25 23

🌐 biosecurity.qld.gov.au

📘 BiosecurityQld

📷 BiosecurityQld

See outbreak.gov.au

for information on pest and disease outbreaks across Australia

